AHRC TECHNE PhD Studentships Humanities

We particularly welcome applications focused on the work of our research centres and groups:

- Hearth Tax Research
- Religion, Society and Human Flourishing
- Renaissance and Classical Studies
- Ministerial Theology
- Sex, Gender and Sexuality
- Medical Humanities

AHRC Studentships are available at the University of Roehampton through the TECHNE Doctoral Training Partnership. Each scholarship includes maintenance and fees for three years for a full-time student, or for five years for part-time students.

TECHNE is a Consortium of 7 higher education institutions, including the University of Roehampton, based in London and the Southeast of the UK. The scheme offers the opportunity to conduct research with specialist scholars from the Department of Humanities at Roehampton working across a broad range of subject areas. Our research staff includes internationally recognised theologians, historians, classicists and philosophers.

Over 5 years (2014-2019), TECHNE will award around 176 PhD studentships across its partner institutions. The other partners are: Royal Holloway University of London (coordinator), Brighton University, Kingston University, Royal College of Art, University of Surrey, University of the Arts London.

The Consortium is named TECHNE in reference to the Greek term for craft. The scheme aspires to create a new model for collaborative research skills training for PhD students. TECHNE's vision is to educate scholars who are highly motivated and prepared for academic, public or professional life. Students will benefit from a diversity of training opportunities and will be able to draw on supervisory expertise from across the Consortium. The TECHNE training programme is enhanced by input and placement opportunities provided by 13 partner organisations, including the Museum of London, the Barbican, the Natural History Museum, the British Film Institute, the Victoria & Albert Museum.
