

RECORDS RETENTION SCHEDULE¹

INTRODUCTION AND GUIDANCE NOTES

This Records Retention Schedule (Schedule) sets out the length of time that the records of Roehampton University (the University) should be retained to ensure the University's compliance with its legal and regulatory obligations under Data Protection Legislation and statutes such as the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Limitations Act 1980. It is also designed to meet the University's operational requirements.

In this Schedule, "Data Protection Legislation" means the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) and from 25 May 2018, unless and until the GDPR is no longer directly applicable in the UK, the General Data Protection Regulation ((EU) 2016/679) and any national implementing laws, regulations and secondary legislation, as amended or updated from time to time, in the UK and then any successor legislation to the GDPR or the DPA. The terms "Data Controller", "Data Processor", "Personal Data", "Sensitive Personal Data" and "Special Categories of Personal Data" have the same meaning as in the Data Protection Legislation.

This Schedule should be read in conjunction with the University's Data Protection Policy.

This Schedule has been prepared by the Legal Services Office in consultation with departments and offices across the University and in accordance with applicable legislation and with reference to the best practice recommendations contained in guidance issued by the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC).

The University Secretariat has responsibility for the operation of the University's archives and together with the Legal Services Office will maintain this Schedule. Questions regarding the storage of hard copy records should be directed to the University Secretariat and questions regarding the electronic storage of records and archiving should be directed to the IT department.

USER GUIDANCE NOTES

The following guidance notes are designed to assist users of this Schedule. The Schedule is presented in the following format:

Record Type	Document owner	Retention period	Proposed Action	Legal Requirement/ Best Practice	Notes
-------------	----------------	------------------	-----------------	----------------------------------	-------

1. Record type

This column describes the type of record held (whether paper or electronic) which is created, received and/ or maintained by the University and its staff in the course of University business.

¹ Revised April 2018. Approved by the Data Working Group on 17 April 2017 and subject to approval by the Audit Committee.

2. Document owner

It is the responsibility of each department and office to ensure legal compliance of their record keeping and maintain an effective records management system for their area of work.

The Schedule takes a functional approach based on record types but also follows the University's organisational structure. There may therefore be situations where some records are maintained by more than one department or office.

3. Retention Period

This column shows the period for which the University's records should to be retained. The retention periods were determined based on factors including:

- Statutory requirements such as:
 - (i) the Data Protection Legislation which makes provision for the length of time personal information can be held, the manner in which the University uses and stores personal information and grants individuals certain rights in relation to the access of and use/misuse of their personal information;
 - (ii) The Freedom of Information Act 2000 ("FOIA") which makes provision for access by the public to the University's records and the public have the right following a relevant request to be informed whether the University holds information and to receive that information (subject to certain exemptions) within 20 working days of making a request. The deliberate withholding or destruction of information to prevent disclosure constitutes an offence under both the FOIA and DPA; and
 - (iii) The Limitation Act 1980 which sets out time periods during which individuals (for example former students, employees or third parties) can bring actions against the University. It also determines the period for which the University can retain and use files as evidence.
- JISC Guidance: The best practice recommendations have been used in instances where legal or regulatory requirements are not available.
- The cost of storing and maintaining records.

4. Proposed Action

The recommended subsequent action for records at the end of the designated retention period is set out under this column. This section does not deal with the method of storage of records.

5. Legal or Regulatory Requirement/ Best Practice

This column cites the applicable legislation, regulation, other requirement or best practice, with reference to the Records Retention Schedule for Higher Education Institutions developed by JISC. Please note that this schedule has been last updated in 2007.

Where an act, statutory instrument, regulation or government requirement has been cited, the retention of the mentioned record for the relevant period of time is mandatory (if not otherwise stated in that piece of legislation).

Where the period of time has been set following the JISC model (cited "JISC") or where the decision has been made by the University (cited "RU"), the retention of that record for the relevant period of time is a recommendation only. Therefore each Document Owner can decide which period would be best suitable for their department but bearing in mind the best practice.

ANNEX 1

Examples of records which may be routinely destroyed

As a rule, the following types of records have no significant operational, informational or evidential value. They can therefore be destroyed as soon as they have served their primary purpose.

- Announcements and notices of meetings and other events, and notifications of acceptance or apologies;
- Requests for stock information such as maps and travel directions, brochures etc;
- Requests for, and confirmations of, reservations for internal services (e.g. meeting rooms, car parking spaces, pool cars) where no internal charges are made;
- Transmission documents: letters, FAX cover sheets, e-mail messages, routing slips, compliments slips and similar items which accompany documents but do not add any value to them;
- Message slips;
- Superseded address lists, distribution lists etc;
- Duplicate documents such as: 'CC' and 'FYI' copies, unaltered drafts, 'Day Files' (chronological copies of correspondence);
- Personal diaries, address books etc.;
- Working papers, where the results have been written into an official document and which are not required to support it; and
- Published or reference materials received from other parts of the institution or from vendors or other external organisations which require no action and are not needed for 'record' purposes, e.g. trade magazines, vendor catalogues, flyers, newsletters.
